Origins of the American Flag

The journey of the American flag began in the late 18th century, during the American Revolutionary War. The need for a distinct symbol to represent the colonies in their quest for independence from British rule was paramount. Historical records indicate that the first official flag, known as the Grand Union Flag, was raised in 1776. This flag featured 13 alternating red and white stripes, representing the original colonies, with the British Union Jack in the canton.

The First Stars and Stripes

In 1777, the Continental Congress adopted the first official flag of the United States. The resolution stated:

> "Resolved, That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

This was the birth of the Stars and Stripes, symbolizing unity among the colonies and the aspiration for a new nation.
