1. Regularly Clear Your Search History

Clearing your search history is a straightforward way to maintain privacy. Most browsers provide easy options to delete or manage your history. Here's how to do it:

- Google Chrome: Go to Settings > Privacy and Security > Clear Browsing Data.
- Safari: Go to History > Clear History.
- Firefox: Menu > Library > History > Clear Recent History.

2. Use Incognito Mode

When searching for sensitive topics, consider using incognito or private browsing mode. This feature ensures that your search history isn't saved after you close the session. However, remember that this won't hide your activity from your internet service provider or websites you visit.

3. Review Privacy Settings
