The main themes include the conflict between individuality and conformity, the use of technology to control society, the loss of personal connections, and the critique of consumerism and hedonism.

How does Aldous Huxley portray the role of technology in society?

Huxley portrays technology as a tool for social control, used to suppress individuality and enforce conformity, illustrating both its potential benefits and dangerous consequences.

What is the significance of the character John 'the Savage' in the novel?

John represents a contrast to the World State's values, embodying natural human emotions and moral values, which ultimately leads to his tragic fate as he struggles to find his place in a technologically controlled society.

How does the concept of 'happiness' differ in 'Brave New World' compared to traditional views?

In 'Brave New World', happiness is achieved through artificial means, such as the use of soma and conditioning, contrasting with traditional views that associate happiness with personal fulfillment, freedom, and meaningful relationships.

What role does the drug 'soma' play in the society depicted in the novel?

Soma serves as a psychological tool for maintaining social stability by providing instant gratification and numbing discomfort, preventing citizens from experiencing true emotions or facing reality.

How does Huxley use the character of Lenina Crowne to illustrate societal norms?

Lenina embodies the conditioned values of the World State, showcasing the acceptance of promiscuity, consumerism, and the rejection of deeper emotional connections, which highlights the extent of societal indoctrination.

What is the role of the Director of Hatcheries and Conditioning in 'Brave New World'?

The Director symbolizes the oppressive control of the state over reproduction and conditioning, demonstrating how the government manipulates human life from birth to ensure conformity and stability in society.
