Causes of WWI Mini-Q Worksheet Answer Key
Historical Context: In the run-up to the twentieth century, Europe was on the verge of a period of peace and progress. Yet below the surface, several forces were at work that would lead Europe into the "Great War." One of these forces was imperialism, which led to competition for colonies in Africa and the Balkans. The competition was only one of the many causes of World War I. However, and increasingly, blame is placed on the causes of World War I and how they led to the responsibility for it. As a historian-in-training, your task is to read and analyze the documents, answer the guiding questions, and determine: What were the causes of World War I?
Document 1 	Define the word: Alliance is union or association formed for mutual benefit, especially between countries or organizations. Which are the members of the Triple Entente? Which are the members of the Triple Alliance? The triple entente members surround the triple alliance members. infer: How could the alliances shown on this map lead to global war?
ANSWERS MAY VARY If France or Great Britain need to come to the aid of Russia due to their alliance, the countries between them will also have to respond due to their alliances.
Document 2 	What does the headline on this newspaper say? What does it mean? "Assassination heir to the Austro-Hungarian Throne" means that someone killed the next person in line to rule Austria.
	How does this headline describe the assassin? Why is this detail important? They are described as a "Serb Student" which means they are not Austrian. We can infer from this detail that it will cause a conflict between multiple regions.

Causes of WWI Mini Q Answer Key is a topic that delves into the intricate web of political, social, and economic factors that led to one of the deadliest conflicts in history. World War I, also known as the Great War, erupted in 1914 and lasted until 1918, claiming millions of lives and reshaping the global political landscape. Understanding the causes of WWI requires a detailed examination of various interconnected elements, including nationalism, imperialism, militarism, and the intricate alliance systems that characterized early 20th-century Europe.

Nationalism

Nationalism played a pivotal role in the lead-up to World War I, as various ethnic groups sought independence and nations sought to assert their dominance. This fervent sense of national pride often led to tension among countries.

Heightened Rivalries

Nationalism intensified rivalries, particularly in regions like the Balkans, where Slavic groups sought to liberate themselves from Austro-Hungarian rule. The desire for self-determination fueled conflicts and made diplomatic resolutions more challenging.

Examples of Nationalism

- The Balkan Wars: These conflicts (1912-1913) saw Balkan states battling the Ottoman Empire and each other, setting the stage for greater tensions in the region.
- Pan-Slavism: Supported by Russia, this movement aimed to unite all Slavic peoples, creating friction with Austria-Hungary, which had its own Slavic populations.

Imperialism

The race for colonies and global dominance was another significant cause of World War I. European powers competed fiercely for territories in Africa, Asia, and the Pacific, leading to tensions and conflicts.

Competition for Colonies

The imperial ambitions of nations like Britain, France, Germany, and Russia created an environment of distrust. As countries expanded their empires, they often clashed over territories.

Examples of Imperialism

- Moroccan Crises: The First (1905) and Second Moroccan Crises (1911) involved Germany challenging French control in Morocco, leading to international tensions and solidifying alliances.
- The Scramble for Africa: As European nations divided Africa among themselves, it led to rivalries and confrontations, particularly between Britain and Germany.

Militarism

Militarism, defined as the belief that a country should maintain a strong military and be prepared to use it aggressively, was a significant contributor to the outbreak of World War I.

The Arms Race

In the years leading up to the war, European nations engaged in an arms race, building up their military forces and stockpiling weapons. This atmosphere of heightened military preparedness made countries more willing to resort to armed conflict.

Examples of Militarism

- Naval Expansion: Germany's attempts to build a navy to rival Britain's Royal Navy intensified tensions, leading to a naval arms race.
- Military Planning: Countries developed detailed military plans, such as Germany's Schlieffen Plan, which outlined a strategy for a two-front war against France and Russia.

Alliance Systems

The complex system of alliances created a situation where a conflict involving one nation could quickly escalate into a larger war. The two main alliance systems prior to World War I were the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente.

The Triple Alliance

Consisting of Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy, this alliance was intended to provide mutual support in case of conflict. However, Italy would later remain neutral and ultimately side with the Allies.

The Triple Entente

Comprising France, Russia, and Britain, this alliance was formed in response to the perceived threat from the Triple Alliance. The entente aimed to counterbalance the power of Germany and its allies.

The Spark: The Assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand

While the underlying causes of World War I had been brewing for years, the immediate trigger for the war was the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary on June 28, 1914.

The Assassination

The assassination was carried out by Gavrilo Princip, a member of the nationalist group known as the Black Hand. This event set off a chain reaction of diplomatic crises.

Consequences of the Assassination

- Austro-Hungarian Ultimatum: Austria-Hungary issued an ultimatum to Serbia, demanding an investigation into the assassination and other concessions.
- Mobilization of Alliances: The complex alliance system led to a rapid mobilization of countries, with Russia backing Serbia and Germany supporting Austria-Hungary.

Conclusion

The causes of World War I are multifaceted and deeply intertwined. Nationalism, imperialism, militarism, and the alliance systems created a volatile environment in Europe. The assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand served as the spark that ignited the already simmering tensions, leading to a catastrophic conflict that would change the world forever.

Understanding these causes is crucial for grasping the complexities of World War I and its lasting impacts on global history. The lessons learned from this tumultuous period continue to resonate today, reminding us of the importance of diplomacy, cooperation, and the potential consequences of unchecked nationalism and militarism. By studying the intricate web of factors that led to the Great War, we can better appreciate the fragility of peace and the importance of international relations in preventing future conflicts.
