Understanding Competency-Based Interviews

Competency-based interviews, also known as behavioral interviews, are structured to evaluate the competencies that are relevant to a job role. These competencies can include communication skills, teamwork, problem-solving abilities, and leadership qualities. The underlying belief is that past behavior is the best predictor of future performance.

The STAR Technique

One effective method for answering competency-based interview questions is the STAR technique, which stands for:

1. Situation: Describe the context within which you performed a task or faced a challenge.
2. Task: Explain the specific task or challenge you were responsible for.
3. Action: Detail the actions you took to address the task or challenge.
4. Result: Share the outcomes of your actions, including what you learned or achieved.

Utilizing the STAR technique helps structure your answers logically and clearly, making it easier for interviewers to follow your thought process.

Examples of Competency-Based Interview Questions

Here are some common competency-based interview questions, along with insights on what interviewers are assessing through each question:

1. Teamwork

Question: "Can you describe a time when you worked as part of a team? What was your role, and what was the outcome?"

What interviewers assess: They want to see how well you collaborate with others, your ability to communicate, and how you handle conflicts within a team.

Answer Example:

- Situation: "In my previous job as a marketing coordinator, I was part of a team tasked with launching a new product."
- Task: "My specific role was to coordinate the social media campaign."
- Action: "I organized a series of brainstorming sessions to gather ideas, delegated tasks based on team members' strengths, and ensured open communication throughout the process."
- Result: "The campaign not only launched on time but also exceeded our engagement goals by 30%."

2. Problem-Solving

Question: "Tell me about a time you faced a significant problem at work. How did you approach it?"

What interviewers assess: They are interested in your analytical skills, creativity in finding solutions, and resilience in overcoming obstacles.

Answer Example:

- Situation: "While working as a project manager, we encountered a major delay with one of our suppliers."
- Task: "It was my responsibility to find a solution that would keep the project on track."
- Action: "I conducted a quick assessment of alternative suppliers, negotiated terms with one who could meet our timeline, and communicated transparently with our client about the situation."
- Result: "We were able to resume the project within a week, and the client appreciated our proactive communication, which strengthened our relationship."

3. Leadership

Question: "Describe a situation where you had to lead a team under pressure. How did you handle it?"

What interviewers assess: They seek to understand your leadership style, decision-making abilities, and how you inspire others during challenging times.

Answer Example:

- Situation: "During a critical project deadline, our team was short-staffed due to unexpected absences."
- Task: "As the team leader, I needed to ensure we still met our deadline."
- Action: "I quickly reassessed the project tasks, redistributed the workload among the remaining team members, and held daily check-in meetings to monitor progress and provide support."
- Result: "We successfully delivered the project on time, and the team reported feeling more cohesive and motivated despite the challenges."

4. Adaptability

Question: "Can you provide an example of a time you had to adapt to a significant change at work? What did you do?"

What interviewers assess: They want to evaluate your flexibility and ability to navigate change positively.

Answer Example:

- Situation: "When my company underwent a major restructuring, our department's focus shifted significantly."
- Task: "I had to quickly adapt to new priorities and learn new procedures to align with the company's new direction."
- Action: "I took the initiative to attend additional training sessions and collaborated with my new team members to understand the changes better."
