Understanding Codependency

Codependency is a behavioral condition characterized by an excessive emotional or psychological reliance on a partner, often at the expense of one's own needs and well-being. It can stem from various factors, including:

- Childhood experiences: Growing up in a dysfunctional family or being exposed to substance abuse can lead to learned behaviors that prioritize others' needs over one's own.
- Low self-esteem: Individuals struggling with self-worth may seek validation through caretaking, leading to a cycle of dependency.
- Fear of abandonment: The anxiety of losing a relationship can drive individuals to tolerate unhealthy dynamics, reinforcing codependent patterns.

Common traits of codependent individuals include:

- A strong desire to please others
- Difficulty setting boundaries
- A tendency to fix or rescue others
- Feeling responsible for others' emotions
- Neglecting one's own needs and desires
