1. Spooky Collage Creation

Creating a spooky collage allows participants to explore their feelings about fear and the unknown.

- Materials Needed: Old magazines, scissors, glue, large paper or poster board, and any additional decorative items (glitter, stickers, etc.).

- Instructions:

1. Ask participants to cut out images and words from magazines that resonate with their feelings about Halloween, fear, or the concept of transformation.
2. Encourage them to arrange these cutouts on their poster board in a way that represents their emotions.
3. Allow participants to share their collages with the group and discuss the meaning behind their choices.

2. Pumpkin Painting Therapy

Pumpkin painting provides a hands-on activity that encourages creativity and self-expression.

- Materials Needed: Small pumpkins, acrylic paints, brushes, markers, and other decorative items (ribbons, sequins, etc.).

- Instructions:

1. Provide each participant with a pumpkin and the necessary painting materials.
2. Encourage them to paint their pumpkins in a way that represents their personality, mood, or current emotions.
3. After painting, participants can share the story behind their designs, fostering discussion about their choices.

3. Ghostly Shadow Boxes

Creating shadow boxes can help participants explore themes of loss and memory, often associated with Halloween.

- Materials Needed: Small boxes (shoe boxes work well), black construction paper, scissors, glue, and small decorative items (toy ghosts, fake cobwebs, etc.).

- Instructions:

1. Instruct participants to create a shadow box that represents a memory or a person they want to honor. They can use the black paper to create a backdrop.
2. Participants can decorate their boxes with items that symbolize their loved ones or memories.
3. Encourage them to share their boxes and the stories they represent, promoting emotional connection and understanding.

4. Haunted House Drawing

Drawing haunted houses allows individuals to explore their fears in a creative and playful way.

- Materials Needed: Paper, colored pencils, markers, and crayons.

1. Ask participants to draw their version of a haunted house. They can include elements that represent their fears or things that scare them.
2. Once completed, participants can share their drawings, discussing what each element represents and how they feel about it.
3. This activity can lead to discussions about overcoming fears and finding strength in vulnerability.

5. Monster Making Workshop

Creating monsters can be a fun way to engage with the concept of fear while allowing participants to reclaim their power over what scares them.

- Materials Needed: Craft supplies such as construction paper, googly eyes, scissors, glue, and markers.

- Instructions:

1. Encourage participants to create their own monster using the craft supplies. They can give their monster a name and a backstory.
