History of Cursive Writing

The origins of cursive writing can be traced back to ancient times. Here are some milestones in its development:

1. Ancient Scripts: Early forms of cursive can be seen in ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs and Latin scripts.
2. Medieval Manuscripts: Cursive writing flourished during the medieval period, especially in Europe, where scribes used it for copying texts.
3. Modern Cursive: The late 19th and early 20th centuries saw the standardization of cursive handwriting in schools, particularly in the United States.

Characteristics of Cursive Writing

Cursive writing is defined by several distinct features:

- Connected Letters: Each letter flows into the next, creating a seamless appearance.
