- John: This Gospel focuses on the divinity of Christ, employing a more theological lens.

2. Acts of the Apostles

The book of Acts, written by Luke, chronicles the early Church's growth and the spread of the Gospel after Jesus' ascension. It highlights key figures like Peter and Paul and their missionary journeys.

3. Epistles

The majority of the New Testament consists of letters (epistles) attributed to Paul and other apostles.

- Pauline Epistles: Such as Romans, Corinthians, and Galatians, these letters address theological issues, ethical behavior, and community concerns.
- General Epistles: Letters like Hebrews, James, and Peter's letters, which speak to broader Christian audiences and cover various teachings.

4. Revelation

The final book, Revelation, is an apocalyptic text attributed to John, providing visions of the end times and encouraging perseverance among early Christians facing persecution.
