International Association of Business Communicators

International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) is a global network dedicated to advancing the profession of business communication. Founded in 1970, the IABC has grown into a community of professionals who aim to foster effective communication strategies in various business environments. With members in over 70 countries, the IABC serves as a vital resource for communication practitioners, providing them with tools, insights, and networking opportunities to enhance their careers and improve their organizations' communication practices.

History of IABC

The IABC was established to address the growing need for professionals in business communication during the late 20th century. As organizations began to recognize the importance of effective communication in achieving business goals, the need for a professional body became evident. Here's a brief timeline of significant milestones in the IABC's history:

1. 1970: The IABC is founded in San Francisco, California, by a group of communication professionals.
2. 1976: The first International Conference is held, marking the beginning of a tradition of annual gatherings for communication professionals.
3. 1980s: The IABC expands globally, establishing chapters in various countries and regions.
4. 1990s: The IABC introduces the Accreditation program to recognize communication professionals who demonstrate excellence in their field.
5. 2000s: The organization embraces digital communication trends, adapting its resources to meet the needs of a rapidly evolving industry.
6. 2020: The IABC celebrates its 50th anniversary, reflecting on its impact on the profession and the importance of communication in a globalized world.

Mission and Vision

The IABC's mission is to provide a global network for business communication professionals, promoting the value of communication as an essential element of organizational success. The association envisions a world where communication is recognized as a strategic function that drives business results and enhances stakeholder engagement.

Core Values

The IABC operates under a set of core values that guide its initiatives and interactions:

- Integrity: Upholding high ethical standards in communication practices.
- Excellence: Striving for the highest quality in all aspects of professional communication.
- Innovation: Encouraging creativity and adaptability in the face of changing communication landscapes.
- Diversity: Promoting inclusivity and respect for different perspectives and backgrounds.
- Collaboration: Fostering partnerships and teamwork among communication professionals.

Membership Benefits

Joining the IABC offers a range of benefits for communication professionals at various career stages. Some key advantages include:

- Networking Opportunities: Access to a global network of professionals, enabling members to connect, collaborate, and share knowledge.
