- SMART criteria (Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound)
- Aligning individual goals with organizational objectives
- Encouraging employee input to increase buy-in

This phase sets the foundation for effective performance management by ensuring clarity and mutual understanding.

2. Performance Monitoring

Performance monitoring involves the continuous assessment of employee performance against established goals. Aguinis discusses various methods to facilitate effective monitoring, including:

- Regular check-ins and feedback sessions
- Use of performance metrics and KPIs (Key Performance Indicators)
- Observation and documentation of performance-related behaviors

The goal is to provide ongoing support and identify areas for improvement before formal evaluations take place.

3. Performance Appraisal

Performance appraisal is the formal evaluation of an employee's performance over a specific period. Aguinis covers various appraisal methods, such as:

1. 360-degree feedback
2. Rating scales
3. Behaviorally Anchored Rating Scales (BARS)
4. Self-assessments

Each method has its advantages and limitations, and Aguinis encourages organizations to select the most appropriate ones based on their context.

4. Performance Feedback

Providing constructive feedback is a critical component of performance management. Aguinis emphasizes that feedback should be:

- Timely and specific
- Focused on behaviors rather than personal attributes
- Balanced, highlighting both strengths and areas for improvement

Effective feedback can lead to enhanced employee motivation and performance, fostering a culture of continuous improvement.

Challenges in Performance Management
