Understanding Reflexive Pronouns

Reflexive pronouns are used to refer back to the subject of a sentence. Understanding how and when

In each of these examples, the subject (I, she, they) is performing an action on themselves, which is where reflexive pronouns come into play.

There are several different reflexive pronouns in English, and they vary depending on the subject of the sentence. Here's a list:

1. Myself - used with "I"
2. Yourself - used with "you" (singular)
3. Himself - used with "he"
4. Herself - used with "she"
5. Itself - used with "it"
6. Ourselves - used with "we"
7. Yourselves - used with "you" (plural)
8. Themselves - used with "they"

Understanding these pronouns and their corresponding subjects is essential for constructing grammatically correct sentences.
