- Micro-expressions, brief involuntary facial expressions, can reveal true feelings.

2. Gestures:

- Hand movements can emphasize points or convey feelings of openness or defensiveness.
- Specific gestures, such as crossing arms, can indicate discomfort or resistance.

3. Posture:

- Open posture can signal confidence and receptiveness, while closed posture may suggest insecurity.
- Leaning in during a conversation can indicate interest, whereas leaning away might signal disinterest.

4. Eye Contact:

- Maintaining appropriate eye contact can foster trust and engagement.
