Spanish: The Dominant Language

Spanish is the official and most widely spoken language in Panama. The country has a vibrant Spanish-speaking population, influenced by various regional dialects. Here are some key points about the Spanish language in Panama:

1. Historical Influence: Spanish was introduced to Panama during the Spanish colonization in the 16th century. Since then, it has evolved, incorporating local words and phrases from the indigenous languages and African languages spoken by the descendants of enslaved people.

century brought a large influx of American workers and their families, leading to the establishment of English-speaking communities.
